

How can Circle be used to explore environmental thinking and doing so that we can change the way we are being to be more sustainable and healthier too?

About the Host

Laura Cameron-Delisle

Circlekeeper, Beekeeper,
Environmental Educator. M.A.,
B.A.

Passionate about this great work and how it can empower joy & wonder within us all, Laura deeply studied Circle and its significance for Environmental Education as a Master's thesis (2009-2011). Facilitating Circle since 2004, and former student of experienced Circle practitioners, (Way of Council, The Circle Way), she continues to find ways to utilize the process for creating individual and community well-being. For all us, all beings.

Read more:
www.thebumblebeecircle.com

Circle is an exceptional tool for environmental purposes. This ancient social practice can help us to create healthy communities, empower community engagement, and address what matters most to us about the planet Earth. COME OUT & DISCOVER the power of Circle and its potential to create well-being for others and the natural world. www.thebumblebeecircle.com

The Power of Circle: Discovering Ecological Identity, July 24th

An introductory course to the Circle process – a meaningful communications tool and group process community-building design – useful for multi-purposes including coming to self-awareness, relationship-building, healing, celebration, team-building, conflict-resolution, and plenty more. We will learn the basics of Circle – its values, principles, practices and practical implications for today – through the exploration of ecological identity – how we identify our self in relationship to the natural world and our role within it. This class is for beginners (ages 18+), as well as those seeking to deepen their experience of Circle.

When: Wednesday, July 24th 10am - 4pm.

Cost: $35 / person. Spaces available: 15 max.

Fresh, local, organic lunch provided.

REGISTER BY JULY 20th ONLINE: <http://circleandecologicalidentity.eventbrite.ca/>

The Power of Circle II: Deepening Ecological Identity, July 31st

For individuals with a basic understanding of the Circle process seeking to deepen one's experience and understanding of the practice. Beyond the basics of Circle we will look at different designs as well as facilitation tips to empower effective Circle practice – while continuing to explore ecological identity – how we identify our self in relationship to the natural world and our role within it. This workshop is for adults (ages 18+).

When: Wednesday, July 31st 10am - 4pm.

Cost: $35 / person. Spaces available: 15 max.

Fresh, local, organic lunch provided.

REGISTER BY JULY 29th ONLINE:

<http://circleandecologicalidentity2.eventbrite.ca/>

WHERE: @ THE BUMBLEBEE CIRCLE GARDEN in Chilliwack, B.C.

REGISTER ONLINE to reserve your spot!

Workshop 1: <http://circleandecologicalidentity.eventbrite.ca/>

Workshop 2: <http://circleandecologicalidentity2.eventbrite.ca/>

For more information contact laura@thebumblebeecircle.com or call (604) 703-0341.